NCLB Promotes Parent Involvement

“A school system without parents at its foundation is just like a bucket with a hole in it.”

Jesse Jackson

Parents are important to a child's education. Learn how you can be more involved with your child's school.

Parents can be involved with developing school and corporation policies about family involvement.
The policy will tell:

1. How to involve parents review and understand school improvement.
2. How to help parents help their child with school work.
3. How to help parents understand the State standards and assessments (ISTEP+).
4. How parents and teachers can become better partners in education.
5. How to coordinate with other programs, like Head Start.
6. Understand programs like Title I that are available to students.
7. How to help parents and schools evaluate the successes of the schools together.
8. How to use money for useful parent involvement programs.
9. How to involve parents of Limited English Proficiency students.
10. How to share information about the achievement of students in the school, corporation, and State.

11. How to use money for useful parent involvement programs.
12. How to involve parents of Limited English Proficiency students.
13. How to help parents learn about the qualifications of their child's teacher.
14. How to inform parents of improvement status, like whether or not they have school choice or supplemental educational services.
15. How to explain what school improvement means to parents and students.
16. Where to find more information about parent involvement from such as Parent Information and Resource Centers (PIRCs).
17. How to develop a school-parent compact for Title I students to help ensure success for their child.

To learn more about opportunities to be involved with your child's school, contact your child's teacher or principal for more information.
